Legacy systems and poor past user experiences are creating a fear around technology in the hospitality industry.